The Treaty of Windsor

In 1986, the special exhibition which took place in Lisbon to record the 600th anniversary of the Treaty of Windsor was timed to coincide with the accession of Portugal to the European Economic Community. The exhibition was a joint venture between the National Archive of the Torre do Tombo in Lisbon and the British Historical Society of Portugal and it featured 137 documents dating from 1147 until 1943, representing the documentary skeleton of the alliance between Portugal and England. The actual Treaty of Windsor, celebrated in 1386 between D João I of Portugal and Richard II of England, still exists in both the Torre do Tombo and in the Public Record Office. This treaty was an important milestone in the history of the Anglo-Portuguese Atlantic alliance against the natural and powerful Franco-Spanish continental land alliance, and was one of the cornerstones of the military alliance between the two countries which lasted until the formation of NATO and the European Economic Community. In this lecture, Peter Booker examines the alliance and how a succession of treaties has bound the two nations together, and considers the military interventions of English troops in Portugal, and the expedition of Portugal's navy to English waters.

Photographs that Changed the World

Born in Faro, 36 year-old Paulo Viegas is a self taught photographer who promotes himself through his photography, and both teaches photography and uses photography to help other people.

Paulo founded the photographic club f/18.1, and together with club members and through photographic exhibitions, he has given support to the Fundação Irene Rolo, the Tavira based charity for disabled people and those with special needs, and also various charitable initiatives, such as the restoration of O Golfinho, the traditional wooden fishing boat, and he has worked with animal charities. His photographic group has been ironically labelled as the photographic group for lost causes.

Paulo is a great believer in the saying that one image is worth a thousand words, and in this presentation, he will be giving his view on the world's great photographs, and how these photos have been instrumental in changing people's perceptions and making a difference to their lives

Dear Friends, here is information about the Mesa do Cume Restaurant. As some of you will know, Teun and Maria have been sponsoring AHA by providing and serving tapas at our classical music concerts. Mesa do Cume is one of our favourite restaurants in the Eastern Algarve and we are delighted that it is re-opening.

AHA NEWS

Book Catalogue

I attach a list of our history books catalogued by Fátima Cardoso and Paulo Viegas. Eventually the list will appear in full (with author, description, category and date) on the website and we also intend to circulate information to all members, who will have the opportunity to borrow books.

Website

There is quite a lot of work to do to update to our new website as there are many articles and photographs to be uploaded. We hope to be online later this week with the basic information which will then be updated as soon as possible. We have Fátima and Paulo to thank for this and we are pleased that we can make a contribution towards their expenses.

Voluntary Contributions

We thank everyone for continuing to contribute to the running of AHA. A proportion of your contributions goes towards supporting local cultural organisations and charities, etc. We have volunteered to consider any requests made by the Câmaras in Tavira and Lagoa for funding but after 3 years we have not heard anything despite repeating the offer. We offered €750 in prize money to support an International Young Person's Competition at Tavira Conservatory, and it was also not taken up. We have therefore broadened our horizons a little to include charities such as APAV with bases in the Algarve. Peter and I believe that changing the culture of violence in the home is a worthy recipient, and we have also supported Madrugada (supporting people affected by life limiting illness) and the The Algarvean Alzheimers support group.
